HOW TO PLAY

Race Track is a fast-paced game that allows you to place a bet on the horse that you believe will be the race winner. You can bet on one horse, multiple horses, or all six horses in a race.

HORSES

Each of the six bet spots represents a horse participating in a race, where only one wins. Horses are assigned to lanes in descending order of strength, with the strongest horse in lane one and the weakest in lane six. Every race features a line-up of six randomly chosen horses selected from the full list of 50 horses.*

In each race, there are a couple of strong horses with a high chance of winning, some average horses with a medium chance of winning, and a few horses with a low chance of winning. The winning odds and payouts for bet spots change from race to race.

BETTING PHASE

Place your bet on one or multiple horses; betting on all is also allowed.

During the betting phase, you can switch between 'All Horses' and 'Tipster's Choice' statistics modes.

- 'All Horses' mode shows how the horses have performed in the last 100 races compared with their theoretical winning probabilities.
- 'Tipster's Choice' mode emphasises the horse(s) that have historically performed better than the others.

MAIN GAME ROUND

Once the betting time is over, the race kicks off with thrilling anticipation. The winner is the horse that dashes across the finish line first. A winning horse is randomly determined based on its probability of winning.

PAYOUTS

Your winnings for each game (race) are calculated based on the winning horse's payout. Each horse has a different payout.
